Building Records Here
Reveal An Unusual
Active Spring

BETTER STREETS ALSO ARE BUILT

Two Business Houses
Are Erected During Past Three Months

Records obtained from City Clerk Henry Hartung and City Clerk E. W. Collier show quite an increase in building in Albany-Decatur during the months of April, May and June for the period ending June 28, 1924. The city of Albany issued $43,975.00 in building permits for that period while the city of Decatur was slightly in the foreground having issued $50,000.00. The building was practically all in private residences although two business houses were included, one in each city.

The increase in building of the residential sections is only another answer to the ever present question of where the people will live after they select Albany-Decatur as a home. The population of the cities is increasing daily and while considerable building is being done the demand by far exceeds the supply of homes.

Another feature of the three months just ending is the class and quality of the residences being erected. Practically all bungalows built in the latest architecture, modern in every sense of the word and permanent.

Albany-Decatur aside from the residential building is fast becoming one of the first cities in the state in the matter of street building. The building of better homes is to be a great extent influenced by the street paving program of both cities. Better streets mean better homes even as good roads mean greater farm production and prosperity.

The progressiveness of the local people is clearly shown in that nearly $100,000 in building has been done in the last three months, possibly the dullest three months of the year. Old questions of progress are being brought up and meeting with more success than before, the cities are growing. The mere fact of the cities location means that with the future better and greater years are in store.

Committee Will Meet On Monday

Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the rooms of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce, the second conference held here recently on the present status of the Alabama Traction service for the Twin Cities will be held.

In addition to representatives of the traction company, the following committee from the two cities are expected to attend: W. W. Rahm, C. D. Patterson, A. A. Hardage, W. A. Bibb, Mayor James A. Nelson and Clyde Hendrix.

Princess Has Another Fine Week Ahead

The Princess theater is offering another unusually attractive feature week for June 30 and the first days of July. The picture program is headed by Lionel Barrymore and Betty Compson. The Wehle company offers three successful plays that will be of interest and amusement to the local crowds.

The Wehle company has established a record for capacity houses since coming here five weeks ago. The east is being augmented for the remaining summer months.

Speak Here Sunday

Dr. E. E. Violette

The people of the Twin Cities are promised a rare treat in a public address to be delivered at the First Christian church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, by Dr. E. E. Violette, general evangelist, who is now conducting a series of meetings at the First Christian church of Hartsville.

Dr. Violette, is to speak on "Americanism, the goal of history." Seats are free with a cordial invitation to all.

FOOT PRINTS FOUND AT STONE QUARRY

Human footprints are to be seen in stone recently taken from a quarry on the farm of Captain J. H. Peebles of Mooresville, across the Tennessee river in Madison County, stated William Roberts, a former deputy sheriff of Madison County and a frequent visitor to the Twin Cities. Mr. Roberts stated Saturday, that the human tracks were found under a second strata of stone, some 16 feet down at the quarry of Mr. Peebles. The stone was being quarried to be used for the new stone house now in course of erection for Captain Peebles, when the footprints are being exhibited by Captain Peebles, stated Mr. Roberts. According to descriptions, some of the footprints were found. According to descriptions, some of the shallow. Mr. Roberts stated that one set of foot prints indicated the man who made them must have worn about a No. 8 shoe. It was pointed out that geologists claim that the human beings who made the tracks on the Peebles farm, must have lived several eons ago.

Water Co. Auditor Is Visitor Here

W. T. Barnes, auditor of the Alabama Water company, was a recent visitor here. In the interests of the $50,000 preferred stock sale of his company, Mr. Barnes stated the state service commission had officially approved the issue. He stated that the water company supplied the water for these other cities, Anniston, Oxford, Blue Mountain, Bessemer, Birmingham, Lipcomb, Attala, Jasper, Oneonta, Greensboro, Doars, Girard, Russellville, Albertville, Beaz, Irondale and Leeds a population of 115,000 declared Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Newman said that in case the men fought extradition from Alabama to Tennessee, since they were wanted in Huntsville on a serious charge, he would return with them as far as the Madison County capital and lodge them in jail at Huntsville.

GOLF COURSE WILL OPEN THURSDAY AT NEW COUNTRY CLUB

Qualifying Rounds Are Open To All The Club's Players

TOURNEY IS SET FOR JULY FOURTH

Prizes Are Offered By Local Merchants
For The Winner

The Valley Golf and Country club will be open for the first time on July 3 for the qualifying rounds preliminary to the matches that will be played on the Fourth. Officials of the club announced today that each member of the club was eligible and that several prizes have been offered by local merchants for the winners of each flight going out on the Fourth.

The plan for the preliminary rounds on the third is to enable classification of the membership. It is expected that as many as six or seven flights will be necessary for the Fourth.

The club house is not yet in readiness but a few more days work will make the house one of the most attractive in northern Alabama. The nine hole course is in good playing shape, the fairways while as yet still only sparsely covered in bermuda are fast and the mid-iron will be very much in evidence. Some of the tees are in good shape and the entire course in a very short time will be one of the prettiest in the section.

The officials of the organization are looking forward to a great opening day and it is anticipated that practically the entire membership will qualify on the third. To qualify it will be necessary for a twosome, threesome or foursome to play. Each player is to keep the others score and the total will be turned over to the committee on the tournament on the fourth. The player's score will classify him as to the flight.

The opening of the course club will be realization of a dream long looked forward to in Albany-Decatur. For years the movement has been underway but no organization has been perfected until the last year. With a world of work before them the officials went to work and accomplished the seemingly impossible in obtaining a representative membership and buying some of the most suitable ground for a golf course in this territory. The lay of the land was the foundation for an excellent course and after obtaining the services of a semi-professional the work of laying out the course was started. After months of hard work the course was completed and is now ready for the opening day.

The rules and regulations committee has not yet announced the rules of play but will do as early next week.

Endeavor League Enjoys A Picnic

Members of the Twin City Christian Endeavor Society league attended a social gathering at San Souci cave Friday night, when the young people enjoyed a good time. A number of musical selections were given, short addresses made, and refreshments were served. The churches represented in the city C. E. league are all the local Presbyterian churches and the First Christian church.

Robert D. Edwards, league supervisor, announces that the Albany-Decatur concert band has kindly consented to furnish music for the opening game of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial league, which plays its first games at Malone park Saturday afternoon.

CUMMINGS STORY IS DRAMATIC ONE

Chairman Recites Tale
Of Weary Parleys In
Effort At Harmony

(Associated Press)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., June 28—Responding to appeals of the party leaders to give more time for the platform committee to work on the Ku Klux Klan plank, the democratic national convention, after a brief morning session, recessed until three o'clock this afternoon, eastern daylight saving time.

Seemingly hopelessly divided on the issue of whether the Klan is to be named specifically and surrounded by war clouds, loaded with threats of a party split, the convention managers sent Homer Cummings, chairman of the platform committee, to explain to the convention why the platform was being delayed and to plead for more time.

Tired and worn by continuous loss of sleep since last Tuesday, Chairman Cummings gave as dramatic a recital as ever had been heard in national conventions.

Explaining the deliberations of the committee and its inability to reach an agreement, he told amid a dramatic silence how, after an all night session the committee had gathered around their tables in the breaking dawn of the day and recited in unison the Lord's prayer, after which William J. Bryan had raised his voice and spoken a prayer for divine guidance.

Slowly, amid expectant silence, Cummings began a short address, outlining the situation in the committee. He had a grave face as he spoke. The chairman began by saying he was about to tell the convention something relating to a subject, which "may in a large way effect the destiny of our party."

He then recited how the committee had organized and began its work immediately after its appointment Tuesday, how its sub-committee had been in almost continuous session until last night, when it reported to the full committee.

In reply to a question as to what Bishops of the Southern church opposed the proposed merger, Mrs. White said she understood Bishops Denney, Candler, Ainsworth, Darlington and Dickie were against the present plan "All the other bishops are for it, as I understand it," said Mrs. White, of the other ten Bishops, those said to favor the present merger are: Bishop James Cannon, McMurray, Bonz, Murrah, DuBose, Hay, Moore, Beauchamp and Hoyt M. Dobbs. As regards Bishop Dobbs, his father, Dr. Samuel L. Dobbs, of Birmingham, Secretary-treasurer of the educational work of the North Alabama M. E. Church South conference, who is outspoken against the unification idea, stated while here recently that his distinguished son was "wisely keeping his own council" on the proposed church merger. Rev. Manly, stated that H. H. White would not pass this way to Chattanooga, but would go from his Louisiana home via Birmingham to Chattanooga.

In two instances there has been a difference of opinion.

"There was a difference as to the phrasology to be employed in the plank regarding the league of nations. The plank in the majority report will carry with it the signatures of a large majority of the committee. A minority report will be submitted. I understand, by Mr. Baker of Ohio. But these differences are but a part of the story.

Choosing the grove on the river drive as the place of entertainment the Euzalin Ladies Bible class honored the Men's class with a delicious luncheon Tuesday evening. Mrs. T. A. Mickel hostess. Mrs. W. A. Cramer and Mrs. Lillian Halbrook assisted in serving.

Frantic Efforts Made For Peace As Meet Begins

(By Associated Press)
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 28—At the final session of the platform committee this afternoon the vote against naming the Ku Klux Klan in the platform was 34 to 16. The action confirmed forecasts that the committee would be unable to agree and that the fight would be carried to the floor of the convention.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, June 28—The plan of the convention managers was to report all of the platform except the Klan plank and the league of nations plank. Then the plan proposed was that at another session tonight, from which everybody except delegates and representatives of newspapers would be excluded these two planks would be debated.

NEW YORK, June 28—Democratic party leaders failed today in a renewed effort to reconcile their differences over the Ku Klux Klan issue and avoid an open fight on the floor of the national convention.

A morning session of the convention was adjourned to provide opportunity for further peace conferences, but after more than two hours' consultation with other party chieftains, the advocates of an out and out anti-Klan plank announced that the issue must be settled by the delegates themselves.

Bainbridge Colby, of New York, former secretary of state, was selected to conduct the floor fight for the plank condemning the Klan by name and it appeared likely that William Jennings Bryan would lead the element that only wants to put into the platform a general reaffirmation of the principles of religious liberty.

Just before the convention reassembled for an afternoon session, to hear the debate and vote its decision, the platform committee held another meeting in final desperate meeting in an effort to effect a compromise, which party leaders failed to attain.

Reports coming from the conference room of democratic party leaders early this afternoon showed no immediate prospect of an agreement that would keep the Ku Klux Klan issue off the floor of the national convention. Going into consultation in various groups as soon as the morning convention session ended the party chieftains struggled desperately for a solution of the problem. Some still hoped for success, but others predicted no agreement would be possible.

Should all their efforts fail the committee probably will submit two reports, one by the majority condemning the Klan, without naming it, and one by a fighting, uncompromising minority, directing a specific attack against the organization. Then the convention will choose between the two proposals, after a debate. Efforts were made while the leaders were in conference to again canvass sentiment among the individual members of the several delegations, but in the main the discussions and peace efforts were confined to the dozen or so of chieftains, who are guiding figures in the convention.

The chairman of one large delegation when it was suggested that the delegation try to get together on a compromise, declared that if such a meeting were called, it would last a week.

There was a disposition on the part of some of the Smith leaders to favor a plan to postpone action on the Klan plank until after the presidential nominee had been chosen. In that manner, it was pointed out, the candidate could give his advice, whether the Klan should be named in the platform. The New York delegation was said to strongly favor naming the Klan and Franklin D. Roosevelt, manager of the Smith campaign, said the delegates, themselves would decide the Klan question without mixing it with candidates.

If the question is brought up on the floor of the convention, Mr. Roosevelt said, "the votes commanded by the various candidates will split. Some Smith supporters will vote to name the Klan and others will not. McAdoo and Underwood delegates also

FOUR FIRMS BUILD STREETS AND ROADS

Four street and road building companies, the Independent Paving company of Birmingham, the Moore Pavement Repair company of Columbia, and the Goodrich company and the McQuary Brothers are cooperating in Morgan County at this time. The last named concern has done most of its work in the county, but has several miles of concrete road to build along the Decatur-Moulton pike.

The Independent Paving company is nearing the completion of the streets now torn up for new concrete paving. The Goodrich company under the direction of J. E. Roads, of Nashville, is hurrying up work on its part of the county. Mr. Roads is now on the job for a few days. The Danville pike is being repaired by the Columbia company, with Mr. Moore, its president, in active charge of the work. Mr. Moore has a $25,000 contract with Morgan County to repair certain of its pike roads.

A DAILY PRAYER—We pray Thee we may not merit the rod of Thine anger, but that Thy great love may keep us continually in Thy favor.

Mrs. Coolidge, judging from the quietness of her husband, doubtless believes he is ideal.

If suckers were not born every minute, more people would be working than is now the case.

Japanese will realize sometime, perhaps, that gentleman's agreements never include one set of people forcing themselves on another set.

Asa Candler, in his younger days, was poorer, but there is serious doubt that, with his wealth, he is any happier in his old age. Happiness is one thing his money can't purchase for him.

Bryan is said to be for McAdoo; but in that connection it is well to remember he was instructed for Champ Clark when he entered the Baltimore convention.

The baseball season will get underway Saturday. The teams promise fans fast games at Malone park and the fans, for their part, are promising solid support. That should make a winning combination.

The committee named by President Rahm to confer regarding the traction company's operations here, has a very serious duty before it. The Daily believes that Mr. Rahm has chosen men who will shoulder their burden and are capable of working out a solution of the present problems.

The Daily hopes that its readers will not forget the baseball game on July Fourth between the Kiwanis club and the Y. M. C. Bible Class. The proceeds will be used in the charity funds of the two organizations. The cause for which the committees and the players are giving their time is an excellent one. The people of the Twin Cities have never failed to support a worthy cause of this nature and they will not fail this time. Just bear the date in mind.

It was fitting that the voice of Senator Walsh should have been heard at the Democratic convention—the man who lately performed such an important task for his country. The Senator's vision as to the importance of honesty in government, was doubtless strengthened by his look upon the foulness of cabinet members and others highly placed in the Harding-Coolidge administration. Since Walsh saw so plainly what dirty hands mean in government, it was well he was asked to speak on the importance of clean hands and pure hearts for the persons who rule America. In one section of his speech as permanent chairman of the convention in speaking of the need of the nation of a leader, the Senator said:

"The nation expects, yea, demands of us a leader who exemplifies the principles of government associated with the name of Thomas Jefferson, a leader whose heart is attuned to the pulsations of those who labor on the farm and in the mines, at the desk and in the household, who heeds the cry of all the people for a larger life, rather than the plea of the few, the favorites of fortune, who are eager to exploit their fellows: a leader who has the vision to divine and the courage to pursue the paths to which national honor points and that lead to national, as distinguished from exceptional, prosperity. Such a leader our party lately gave to the nation to guide its course and direct its energies in the greatest crisis that ever rocked the globe. The sheer force of his intellectual supremacy among the statesmen of the world, he assumed, by common consent, the primacy, and, holding it, gave the country in whose name he spoke a place in the family of nations never before attained. He challenged attention to the lofty ideals of America in manner never equalled and met with a response so generous as that for all time her sons will be thrilled at the story of his exposition of them."

If the American people this coming November can be led to take the view of Senator Walsh as to the great need of a great man for President of these United States, the six or seven million majority won by President Harding will be overturned, and Democrats will be substituted for Republicans at the nation's capital. It will take a great movement to overcome the lead of the Republicans in number. It will take a resistless power like the ocean's deep swelling tides, but the American voters have that power, and if once aroused they will use it and sweep those men from power who stood by and made no objection when high officials were in the midst of the schemes and plots, that all but lost respect for America among the nations of the world, and did cause a great loss of self respect among patriotic Americans.

A Train Of Thoughts
For the Sabbath and Other Days

By J. E. Blair

"Who gave her wedding diamonds to start the first mission work in China undertaken by the women of the Methodist church, South?" Those words followed the name of a beautiful woman whose portrait appeared in last Sunday's gravure section of the Nashville Banner. "Wheresoever My gospel shall be preached in the whole world, this thing which the woman hath done, shall be told as a memorial for her" were words of the Master for another woman who made a sacrifice for Him. He has also said that whatsoever we do to the least of Christ's brethren, we do to Him. Therefore the Nashville woman has gained eternal fame, PROVIDED, she gave up her wedding diamonds for the same reason the woman of the scripture anointed her Savior. A person could give great wealth from many tolerable good motives, and then miss the Master's blessing. He said if we give to them who give to us, "what thank have ye?" We might give from weariness, instead of from generous impulses.

One might know the "deceitfulness of riches" and from selfish motives get rid of them. Aristophanes represented wealth as distributed to the ignoble alone, as if its possession were a punishment. The Stoic philosophers praised poverty. Timon of Athens got rid of all his wealth just to appear generous—a very impractical reason. As a matter of fact, Christ Himself is the only teacher who knew what to do with wealth. He tried to tell the "Rich Young Ruler," how to use his wealth to the best advantage. No wonder that foolish young man went away from the Master in a sorrowful frame of mind. If any want to know how to spend their money, take the example of the Nashville woman referred to. Seek to help the least of Christ's brethren. The Savior had much more to say about the use of property than about any other one thing. He wealth should be used for His Kingdom and gotten honestly. His action in breaking up a dishonest way of getting money—the time He drove the money changers out of the temple—was one of the direct causes of His crucifixion. And today when the pocket-book is hit, unless the heart has been previously touched by God's love and power, a fuse is sure to result—the same in kind, as led to the crucifixion of Christ. Finally, what motive should and must move us to part with wealth? The love of Christ and for His poor and ignorant and misguided brethren.

Just as Christ worked a miracle to feed the 5000 ("And seeing the multitude He had compassion on them) so His followers will and must "make every edge cut" in an effort to have some money or diamonds to help the needy come to tables of plenty, and to come out of darkness into the marvelous light and liberty of the Gospel of Christ.

Harry Underwood's Question That Startled Madge.

HARRY UNDERWOOD did not speak again until the lights of the Jericho turnpike at Mineola illuminated our pathway. With his keen eyes searching the road ahead, he had sent his car along at a terrific pace which I was surprised to see kept up by my own car in the hands of Pete a few rods back. He had not held to the right course, but had made several unexpected turns in different directions before coming out upon the turnpike, and I guessed that he was purposely taking the tortuous course in order to throw the men of the bootlegging gang off the track if, in his own expressive parlance, they attempted to "cook up" anything.

Curiously enough, I was not in the least nervous at either the break-neck pace or the possibility of danger if the men who were being sought after by the gang should decide to come after us. The big man by my side seemed the epitome of sure, conscious strength, and I had not needed the injunction he had laid upon me to desist from worrying.

Anxiety had ceased almost from the minute which had seated me beside him in the roadster, and in the relaxation from the fatigues to which my nerves had been strung, I found myself getting drowsy, and when Mr. Underwood finally broke the silence, I had to ask him to repeat the words.

"Asleep at the switch, eh?" he quipped with a smile. "Well, if you haven't earned a little nap, I'd like to have somebody with a better right trotted out as Exhibit A. I might remind you," he looked down at me with a half mocking, half tender little laugh, "that I hold the championship for one-armed, left-handed driving in Greater New York and all points north, east, west and south, so, if you'd like to assume a more comfortable position—"

"We're in Civilization Now."

He paused with teasing inquiry.

"Thank you so much, but I've already had my nap, and I'm not a bit sleepy now," I replied as demurely as though his suggestion was the most conventional in the world. "And—please—do tell me what it was you said that I didn't hear."

Mr. Underwood slowed down the car, turned in his seat and looked searchingly at me.

"Sometimes I don't make you out at all," he said, "but I'm sure, and turned back to his driving as though he meant never to speak again.

With long experience of his vagaries, I made him no answer, and after a minute of silence he began talking in matter-of-fact tones far removed from the personal note which he had struck before.

"We're in civilization from now

HOME-MAKING HELPS

How to Protect
All Your Clothes
from the Moths

By WANDA BARTON

MANY women who consider themselves exemplary housekeepers have to admit that occasionally the moths get the better of them, and steal in to do their damage when they least suspect it. Most of us know but little about these pests that feed at every opportunity on our most expensive woolen garments and furs.

There are two kinds of moths that go into our windows. One is the case-making moth, the other the webbing moth. The former is white or grayish in color, the latter fawn-colored. They do not live long, for they lay eggs in woolens, rugs, fur, feathers and "so on." They even infest piano-key teeth, case-making moth's eggs hatch out in about eight days in hot weather. The worm begins to feed on your possessions and makes a sort of cocoon for itself, which it leaves open at one end so that it can reach out and get its meal easily from the lapel of Father's dress coat or the front breadth of Mother's dress. Meantime, as it eats and outgrows its shell, it keeps putting on extensions to keep itself covered. When its feeding days are over the little worm tears up its front door and goes to sleep. A short life, but a busy one has the moth, and he is a bandit that must be fought.

The first protective step is to clean the closets well. Then burn a small sulphur candle in the closet for a couple of hours.

Now the garments themselves that are to be protected. We never know but that they may already be infected, the eggs being tucked away in the fold of the goods, which they cannot be seen. So the first step is to wash the materials thoroughly, inside and out, in the edges of hems and under pleats. Sponge off all spots with benzine or some other cleanser, then have the garments well pressed. Now they may be folded into tarpaper, or several thicknesses of newspaper, and placed in the trunk or closet. Pepper, tobacco, moth balls, insect powder, camphor, eucalyptus leaves and cedar chips may be added, but they are not very efficient if moths are really bad.

Most people unfortunately do not get their screens in until flying pests are about, with nothing to hinder their entrance. Also, owners are apt to hang things that are not in use at the back and dark end of the closet, without taking the precaution of cleaning them and removing all spots which would help, though not save them, if left there too long. Pressing with a good warm iron is much apt to kill the eggs if they are present. Especially is this true in the case of heavy woolens and men's clothing.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Child at Twenty-Six

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

HELEN'S leaving home and every one is perfectly amazed.

Helen is twenty-six years old and she has a good position downtown, she makes a good salary, wears good clothes and she has a whole lot of good friends.

Why shouldn't she? She's a nice, wholesome, breezy, quick-witted, warm-hearted Helen and everybody likes her.

She's good-looking, too, in a nice, fresh, glad-to-see-you sort of way, and she knows what sort of clothes to buy and how to wear them.

Helen and her mother have a pretty apartment in a nice part of town and Mother is perfectly devoted to Helen—absolutely and completely devoted!

There are just the two of them, and Mother lives and breathes and eats and drinks and rests and works—for Helen.

That's why Helen can't stand it a minute longer.

She's told her mother all about it, quietly and without any feeling whatsoever.

Why Daughter Balked

"Mother," said Helen, "you're the darlings mother in the world, but you just won't let me breathe. You smother me. When I leave this home and shut the front door behind me, I'm a light-hearted, independent woman, interested in my work, interested in my friends, as happy as a lark."

"The minute I open the door and come into the house, I'm nobody at all, but just 'poor dear little Helen' and you're sorry for me and you wait on me and you take care of me till I'm sorry for myself."

"I love my job and everything about it, but you won't let me alone and let me like it. If I tell you any of my little ups and downs, you say you think it's perfectly dreadful and you want me to resign and go to work somewhere else. And if I don't tell you, you say I'm secretive."

"You want to know everything I know, hear everything I hear, see everything I see, until I feel that I'm not myself at all. I'm just a part of somebody else! And, Mother, you listen when I talk over the telephone—yes, you do! And when the mail comes you look to see where my letters are from—now, Mother, you do. And the other night when Grace and Alice came to talk their own personal affairs over with me, you wouldn't go out of the room and let them do it, you just sat there and sat there until they had to go.

It's a good deal to both of them, too."

Mother's a Little Bewildered

"Why couldn't they talk before you? Why, just because they couldn't, that's all—they just couldn't! And now they'll never come to see me again, either of them, not if they have anything to tell or very funny or very tragic or very anything else, either. I'll have to go to see them. They have an apartment together, you know, and there's never any one there but themselves and people they invite."

"And it's always so free in their apartment. No one listens and there's no one tip-toeing up and down the hall, and nobody worrying and nobody 'pooring' you for a minute, and I'm going down to live with Alice and Grace—they're taking a bigger apartment, and it's right by the lake and it's going to be beautiful."

YOUR HEALTH

What You Should Do
If You Fear Hay Fever

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

READY my mail contains inquiries about A hay fever.

One man writes that on each August 5, for ten years, he has had the first evidence of this trouble.

Another person writes that every July she is troubled with this annoyance the entire month, and for the rest of the year is perfectly well. And so it goes—each person seems to have a set time to suffer from the symptoms of hay fever.

The pollen from certain flowers, the dust from hay, the dandruff from horses, dogs and cats and eating certain vegetables, are the most common exciting factors in bringing on hay fever.

As soon as the susceptible person is exposed to the exciting cause of hay fever the first of a chain of symptoms appears. Sneezing, difficult breathing, needful offulness in the head, tinnitus, loss of appetite and fatigue all appear. The nasal and bronchial symptoms are usually most acute.

It has been found by a series of sensitization tests what the particular thing is which causes the trouble. These sensitization tests are made as follows:

If, for example, tomatoes or the pollen of roses is thought to be the irritating cause, a serum is made.

The affected person is then injected with a small amount of this serum under the skin. If there is no reaction and the doctor decides to go further, the serum is given at regular intervals until the system becomes protected against the disease.

In many cases, however, the hay fever still persists after every test has been exhausted.

Change of climate, local treatment for the nasal irritation and care of the diet are most important. Whereas any foodstuff is to be the cause that one food must be entirely eliminated from the diet.

There are many preparations for use in inhalers and sprays which give temporary relief and promote sleep.

Stramonium leaves and nitrate of potash burned together are helpful. Opium should never be taken except under a doctor's instruction.

Most large hospitals now have a special clinic for treatment of hay fever sufferers. Here the best doctors give advice that does much to relieve the victim of hay fever.

In many cases, however, the hay fever still persists after every test has been exhausted.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I used to go with a young man about five years my senior quite regularly, but I grew tired of going out with him so much. Then we had a little argument over some trifles and now we go out occasionally, but things are not as they used to be. I want the old friendship back, but I am quite obstinate. LOONEY.

ONLY: You cannot expect to do anything if you remain obstinate, my dear. If you really wish to re-establish your old relationship, you'll have to work for it—earn it—by being as sweet and companionable as you possibly can be.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a man sincere, and does he love a girl if he does not believe and trust her? Is her mother usually a wise judge in regard to the man a girl is going about with? If the mother does not like him and her feelings are against him, and he does not trust her daughter, should the daughter give him up?

I have been going with this young man for some time and he says he loves me. I shall appreciate your advice.

TRUE BLUE.

T are right, and daughters never regret obeying them. In this case, your mother is very right. For true love is founded on trust and faith.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am an orphan coming to you for advice.

A young man whom I recently met tells me a girl friend how much he likes me and always says he is extremely delighted to be in my company.

His home is out-of-town, but he only goes home about once a month. He always talks about the letter he must write every night and always wonders if there is one at his boarding-house for him.

Now it seems as though the correspondent must be a girl, but he should not always tell my friends to tell me of these looked-for letters. Do you think that this is his way of letting me know he has someone else for whom he cares?

I care a great deal for this young man, but am too proud to go with him if there is another girl in the case.

D. K.

D. K.: "Another girl in the case"—those are queer words, my dear. In the first place, you do not know whether it is really a girl from whom he so anxiously awaits a letter. And then, do not make the mistake of thinking that simply because a man likes you he loves you. Consider him a friend—one of many friends—and then you cannot possibly object to his having other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Does it mean bad luck for a girl to wear an opal ring when it is her birthstone?

M. F.: Does it mean bad luck when a girl receives an opal ring from her friends?

Aunt Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Say what you will, the kind of furniture which young couples surround themselves with in early life, will have a great deal to do with the degree of happiness, they experience as the years go by. A home that is cheerfully and carefully furnished, fires the ambition of the young husband and make him strive for even better things; and think how much happier the young wife is amid the surroundings of a home furnished with good furniture.

Values you know is that combination of sterling quality and moderate price which alone can give you full money's worth. Cheap price along means nothing. Measure the value of our merchandise by both price and quality and you will find that there is a reason.
